

The ERME poster award

A poster award; why?

Often people think that posters are second to papers, which may of course to some extent be true. Still, the format of posters can do things, which papers cannot. The ERME poster award has been established by the ERME board with this in mind.

The poster award initiative will take place for the first time during CERME12.

Who can be a candidate?

All researchers with an accepted poster at CERME12 can be a candidate.

How to be a candidate?

Once your poster is accepted, you will receive an email asking if you opt to participate. The authors who accept will have to send their posters in digital format three weeks before the conference to the poster award committee chair.

Who will decide, and how?

The ERME board has established a Poster Award Committee for CERME12. The committee members will look at the emailed posters, narrow down the final candidates' selection for the award, and visit the final selection of posters during the conference Poster session. They will then have a meeting to select the best poster.

For the winner

The winner will receive an ERME 'Best Poster Award' certificate, and a symbolic gift, during the closing ceremony.

The digital poster and a short text will be displayed on the ERME website.

Poster Preparation Guidelines

The guidelines for posters include the criteria for the best poster award. We strongly advise you to follow these guidelines – even if you do not want to compete!
